

8.6. Corpus and Variation in Linguistic Description and Language Education

May 8 , 2008

Part 1 Presentations of Post-doctoral Researchers

Abe, Yuko (Post-doctoral Researcher, CbLLE)

The Use of -ag- in Colloquial Swahili in Tanzania

Uzawa, Hiroshi (Post-doctoral Researcher, CbLLE)

A study on the pragmatic functions of ialah and adalah in Malay

Questions & Answers

Part 2 English

Yazu, Norie (Kanda University of International Studies)

The Perception of Passive Bilingualism in the Workplace: A Case Study at Canadian Government Institutions

Ishii, Yasutake (Tokyo University of Science)

Making a List of Essential Phrasal Verbs - Bridging the Gap between Formal Definition and Actual Usage

Questions & Answers

Chambers , Jack K. (University of Toronto, Canada)

Education and the Enforcement of Standard English

Durand, Jacques (University of Toulouse, France)

On the scope of grammar: data, intuitions, corpora

Pakir, Anne (National University of Singapore, Singapore)

Lexical Variations in Singapore English: Linguistic Description and Language Education

Ooi, Vincent (National University of Singapore, Singapore)

Computer-mediated language and corpus linguistics: corpus compilation issues, software tools, and varieties of English

Tono, Yukio (GSACS)

Variability and invariability in learner language: a corpus-based approach

Part 3 German / Spanish

Geyken, Alexander (Academy of Sciences of Berlin)

Generation of German word profiles: A comparison between a balanced corpus and a tabloid newspaper

Tinoco, Antonio Ruiz (Sophia University, Japan); Takagaki, Toshihiro (GSACS)

On lexical variation of urban Spanish

May 9 (Fri.)

Part 4 Presentations of Ph.D. candidates

Hashimoto, Yukari (Doctora Student, GSACS); Umino, Tae (GSACS)

Investigating L2 Vocabulary Learning Strategies and Vocabulary Size – the case of Hungarian JFL Learners

Kobayakawa, Maiko (International Center, University of Tokyo, Japan); Umino, Tae (GSACS)

Mitigation strategies in expressions of disagreement by intermediate learners of Japanese-an analysis of DCT data

Questions and Answers

Part 5 French / Spanish

Martineau, France (University of Ottawa, Canada)

Modeling Change : a diachronic perspective on French negation

Detey, Sylvain (University of Rouen, France)

Oral corpora as a source of input for L2 phonology learning : phonetic variability, orthographic stability and Japanese learners of French

Ueda, Hiroto (Tokyo University, Japan)

Vocalic graphemes in medieval Spanish biblical text Computational analysis of <i, j, y> and <u, v, b>in Genesis, Biblia de Alba

Part 6 Turkish / Japanese

Özsoy, A. Sumru (Boğaziçi University, Turkey)

Argument Structure, Syntax and Semantics of Passivization in Turkish: A corpus-based approach

Kawaguchi, Yuji (TUFS, Japan)

A Corpus-Driven Analysis of –r Dropping in Spoken Turkish

Abe, Shin (Nagoya University of Foreign Studies)

"Dialectal Supermarket" as a Result of Dialect Contact -Other Result Than the New Dialect Formation-

Shibuya, Katsumi (University of Osaka, Japan)

Aspects of Style-Shifting in Japan

Maekawa, Kikuo (National Institute for Japanese Language, Japan)
Analysis of word-form variation using the Corpus of Spontaneous Japanese

General Comments

Durand, Jacques (University of Toulouse, France)